Format

Vertical 9:16 Instagram Reel, 1080×1920 (the reference is 720×1280), 30 fps, about 45 seconds. A furniture showroom promo with a female presenter, fast cuts and kinetic typography. Every word of the voiceover appears on screen, and key words become large gold titles.

1. Overall look

- Bright, warm, clean grade: lifted shadows, creamy highlights, slightly warm whites, natural skin tones. Her hot-pink corset top and beige trousers are the strongest colour in every shot.
- Smooth gimbal moves: slow push-ins, gentle orbits and slides past furniture. No shaky handheld.
- Hard cuts on the beat or on each spoken phrase. Most shots last 0.7–2 seconds. No transitions except the opening flash and the fade into the logo.
- Audio: upbeat, light, modern background music with a female voiceover (talking to camera in the A-roll), mixed clearly above the music.

2. Typography system (the core of the style)

There are three text layers. Use the same ones all the way through.

A. Small connector words (scattered)

- Font: Montserrat SemiBold (or a similar geometric sans), white, about 4% of frame height, soft drop shadow.
- Placed around the big word, not in one line. For example, "Stop" sits small above the left edge of the big word, "Your" sits above-left and "home" below-right.
- Each word pops on exactly when it's spoken: a 2–3 frame fade plus a scale from 90% to 100%. No exit animation; words cut off with the shot or phrase.

B. Hero keyword (gold title)

- Font: Bebas Neue / Anton (tall, condensed, all caps), filling roughly 70–80% of the frame width.
- Fill: a vertical metallic gold gradient, pale cream/ivory #FFF6D5 at the top to rich gold #D4A93A / #C9A227 at the bottom. Faint inner sheen, no outline, very soft shadow.
- Entrance: 4–6 frames, scale 110%→100% with opacity 0→100% and a slight upward drift (ease-out). It holds while the word is spoken and cuts out with the shot.

- Depth effect (important): the hero word sits behind the presenter. Rotoscope or AI-mask the person so her head and hair cover part of the letters (for example, her head covers the "O/L" in "SCROLLING", "DESERVES" sits behind her head, and wall lights overlap "LUXURY").
- Position: upper third over A-roll and furniture shots, or lower third over close-ups (for example "PERFECT PEACE" over the hand on the sofa, or "CUSTOMIZABLE DESIGNS" on two stacked lines at the bottom).

C. Brand-name variant

- "BANSAL DECOR" uses the same condensed font with a multicolour gradient: teal/sage green #5E9C8F through dusty blue #3E5F8A. Small white "I am ... at" or "visit" sits above it.

D. Running subtitles (B-roll sections)

- Small white Arial/Helvetica regular, about 2.5% of frame height, centred at roughly 80% down the frame.
- Words appear one at a time: each new word fades from 30% grey to full white as it's spoken. The full phrase stays on until the next phrase, for example "Just look at this showroom" or "this space is worth seeing".
- When a hero keyword lands, the subtitle line is replaced by the gold word.

3. Opening hook (0:00–0:03)

1. Frame 1: a solid white silhouette of the presenter (her mask filled flat white) over the footage for 1–2 frames, then it flashes away to reveal her. This is a "flash cut-out" intro.
2. She stands full-body in the showroom entrance (glass front, wood ceiling, ring-light chandelier, artificial grass floor), arms open, talking to camera.
3. "Stop" (small white) pops, then SCROLLING (gold, behind her head).
4. Cut to the same shot, hands together: "Your", "home", then DECOR in gold between them.
5. Then the subtitle-style line "doesn't have to ... be expensive anymore" builds word by word at the bottom.

4. Shot list and text timing (approximate)

5. End card (last ~2 seconds)

- Background: a soft cream/ivory silk fabric with gentle diagonal folds, slowly drifting.
- Logo fades in over about 8 frames (opacity 0→100, slight scale 95%→100%). It is three circles in a row, gold, grey and black, each with a thin white line icon, above "B A N S A L" in widely tracked thin grey serif/sans capitals. Below that is the small tagline "SOLUTION OF OFFICE & HOME FURNITURE" with a thin underline.
- It holds to the end, with the music ending on the last beat.

6. Editing rules recap

> 1. Every spoken word appears on screen. Filler words are small white, and value words are big gold.
> 2. Hero words always sit behind the subject's head when the subject is in frame.
> 3. Cut on every phrase. Never hold a shot longer than about 2 seconds except the exterior and the final call to action.
> 4. Use the gold gradient for all hero words, and the teal–blue gradient only for the brand name.
> 5. Text pops in fast (4–6 frames) and never animates out; it cuts.

7. Applying this style to the street/office ride footage

The .mov is a ride through traffic, then neighbourhood lanes, then a house entrance with a lattice door, ending in a small office. To make it look like the reel:

- Cut the 86 seconds down to about 35–45 seconds of 1–2 second clips: street/traffic, landmark (petrol station, school gate), lanes, entrance, door opening, office reveal.
- Add a voiceover script and apply the same text system: gold hero words (for example FIND US, EASY ROUTE, WELCOME, YOUR OFFICE) over road shots, and word-by-word subtitles for the directions.
- Use the white-silhouette flash on the first frame and the silk-background logo end card.
- There's no presenter in that footage, so place hero words in the sky area (upper third) instead of behind a head. On the door-opening shot, mask the door frame so the word sits behind it.
